

Emergency Medical Team Society UMass students-- on the call and on the go

Lisa Turcotte
Staff Writer

The UMass Lowell Emergency Medical Technician (E.M.T.) Society was established in 1986, thanks to a former student of the University and advisor Dr. David Eberiel. The society is staffed by certified Emergency Medical Technicians who undergo extensive training which requires time, money and compassion. This club provides twenty-four hour, seven days a week, emergency care to the University throughout the school year. Members work a minimum of thirty-two hours a week earning a small stipend of approximately $.53 an hour or seventeen dollars a week.

During an emergency situation, time is crucial and could be a determinant factor as to whether a person lives or dies. Fortunately this situation does not arise often on this college campus, but if and when it does, the student body deserves the quickest and most reliable medical care. UMass Lowell Emergency Medical Service (E.M.S.) routinely arrives 5-10 minutes ahead of Trinity Ambulance. They provide professional quality service and continuing treatment for victims on route to the hospital. The club answers almost 200 calls a year, ranging in severity from minor cuts and drunken fools, to assaults with weapons, attempted suicides and drug overdoses. The public is unaware of most of the calls received on campus because they usually do not appear under the police log or receive much attention. Their services remain unrecognized and the University classifies this "club" amongst the snow boarding and the magik club.

To some, it does not seem logical that tuition dollars are spent on such services as the escort service, sign-ins, Parking enforcement Aides, and campus guides, but not on an Emergency Medical Service. As Vice President Mike Hoiriis of the UMass E.M.S. points out, "We do not see our value as more important than these other services, but it just does not seem fair that their wages are so much higher, especially considering our prior schooling." After speaking with different members of E.M.S., it is clear that they specifically do their job because they care. Many students can empathize with a person in a tight money situation, because many are in this same struggle.

Murders at the University of Florida solved College Town Relieved By Rolling Plea

College Press Service

GAINESVILLE, Fla. - Relief was enormous among students and administrators at the University of Florida when a Louisiana drifter abruptly pleaded guilty to the 1990 murders of five college students just as his trial was scheduled to begin.

"Our community, the families and so many others have lived with the uncertainty surrounding these terrible events for three years. We are relieved that our legal system has answered, with certainty, the question of who committed these crimes," University President John Lombardi said.

But Lombardi also somberly noted that things will never be the same on the picturesque North Florida campus.

"The loss of these five wonderful young people will always be a part of our institutional and individual memories," Lombardi said. "It will remain a constant reminder of the fragility of life."

Danny Harold Rolling, 39, stunned courtroom spectators Feb. 15, including the victims' family members, when he pleaded guilty to five counts of first-degree murder, three counts of sexual battery and three counts of armed burglary.

"I have been running from first one thing and then another all my life, whether from problems at home or with the law, or from myself," Rolling told the court in a soft, Southern accent. "But there are some things that you just can't run from, and this being one of those."

The Independent Florida Alligator published a special afternoon edition with the news about Rolling's plea.

In the next phase, a jury will decide whether Rolling will face the electric chair or life in prison for the slayings of Christina Powell, 17; Sonja Larson, 18; Tracy Paules, 23; Manuel Taboada, 23 all University of Florida students; and Christa Hoyt, 18, a student at Santa Fe Community College.

Defense attorneys said Rolling had decided in late January that confessing to the crimes was "the right thing to do." The Fe. 15 admission to the charges was not part of a plea-bargain arrangement. The prosecution still intends to seek the death penalty, although defense lawyers say they plan to demonstrate that Rolling was mentally ill at the time of the killings.

Students seemed relieved by the plea. Many were freshmen or sophomores when the serial killings were discovered over the course of three days. Some local residents had expressed doubts whether police had captured the real killer when Rolling was arrested.

"Peace of mind was something this community was after. Now it's not just speculation. He's the killer," Doug Kotler, a 24-year-old law student, told The Orlando Sentinel.

A former UF student, Edward Humphrey, originally was a prime suspect in the killings, although he was later dismissed. Humphrey, who suffers from manic depression, had gone off his medication and was arrested as a result of his bizarre behavior. While in custody, he gave investigators rambling, incoherent statements that made them suspect he had something to do with the murders.

It was not until four months later that Rolling was linked to the murders through DNA testing after he was arrested in connection with a robbery spree in West Florida. Blood and semen found at the Gainesville crime scenes matched Rolling's genetic blueprint. Other evidence was discovered at a makeshift camp in the woods where Rolling had been living.

According to prosecutors, Rolling may have spotted at three of his female victims in advance - two while they were buying merchandise at a Wal-Mart store and one who was buying ice cream at a convenience store - and followed them home to their apartments, where they were raped, murdered and mutilated.

Rolling also was wanted in Shreveport, La., for the attempted murder of his father and remains a suspect in three other murders in Shreveport.

School radio station, WJUL gets upgraded

Michelle Ross
Staff Writer

WJUL, the radio station on campus, has been approved for a new antenna. According to Jim Brandt of WJUL, one reason for the antenna is that the old one

Tony Janeczek, alumni of the station, put together the whole project and saw it through. "He's been our unofficial advisor for years," says Gerry.

For those of you who don't know where the WJUL station is, it's located in the basement of the was in stalled in 1972 and was "two years overdue in its life expectancy." Another reason for the change is that the administration, about seven or eight years ago, wanted the space that the studios are now in and they couldn't have it while the old transmitter was there. "The new antenna is a wireless linkup and studios can now be located anywhere on campus," explains Brandt. Radio reception in cars will also be improved. It will give 62% more coverage area, too.

"Right now, we're actually losing 300 watts of power but with the new antenna, we're going to gain 52 meters of height off average ground," says Brandt. "The antenna will be located in top of the Fox Building and will reach 90 feet into the air, which is almost half of the building itself," says Paul Gerry, also from WJUL.

Lydon Library on North Campus. The new antenna was turned on March 4th. There was a ribbon cutting ceremony at 3:00 in the afternoon which was open to the public.

Jeff Nazzaro

What's the point?

I didn't watch the Grammys, but I'll probably watch the Oscars. I won't watch the Emmys and I don't even know if the Tonys are televised. These awards, by the way, constitute the Grand Slam of popular American culture. And guess what? They're all crap.

Remember a few years back when Jethro Tull won the heavy metal category Grammy, after which singer/flutist Ian Anderson said something like: "but we're not a heavy metal band?" I rest my case.

So what? I don't know. I love the Oscars like anyone else. I love the movies, I love music. I'm interested to see who won Best New Artist (Toni Braxton). I care about who gets the Best Director Academy Award. I take these awards into consideration when I'm purchasing compact discs (sometimes, not really) or renting video cassettes. So what?

Here's the deal. We in America are fascinated by awards. We have championships for everything, including aerobics, cheerleading, lumberjacking, best buns, biggest hair, ugliest neck tie, weirdest smell in a bottle, hairiest mole, worst television show watched by millions, grossest miscarriage of justice, largest egg, toughest truck, scariest underwear ad, greatest guy, coolest cat, stingiest bastard, most irreverently flip philosopher...

We also love lists. Lists of things. People did. People said. People invented for comical purposes. People transcribed. Here's one of my own. It sort of runs parallel to the Grammy theme I'm sort of toying with. And I am toying. You ever toy? I toyed, man, I toyed. Don't toy with me. A toy. Slinky, slinky, it's fun for a girl and a boy.

Anyway, here is my list of songs which can never be played at volumes too high:

- What is Life - George Harrison
- Bell Bottom Blues - Derek and the Dominoes
- I Will Always Love You - Whitney Houston
- Walking in Memphis - Marc Cohn
- Territorial Pissings - Nirvana
- Money for Nothing - Dire Straits
- I Love Trash - Oscar the Grouch

And the winner is...I Will Always Love You - Whitney Houston, The Bodyguard Original Soundtrack Album. Well, she won everything else.

The point is, what's the point? I don't know. I could have sat here and typed "All work and no play makes Jeff a dull boy..." ad 'til the spacum was fullum. I could do a lot of things. We all could. Can. Should. Do, don't, would, try, lay prone under the weight of uninspired thought, beer, television. We watch the Oscars. We ogle babes on TV. We choose sides, play favorites. We look, search, for something, what is it? We don't know, or we do, and we do that which will bring us nearer this preconceived goal, and then submit to our successes, bow to our failures, eat pint after pint of Ben and Jerry's and think we have it all, cookie dough included.

We look for sweet things, live things, things eternal, things which tickle our respective funny bones. We find these things, sometimes, sometimes we do not, we look, or, having found, we enjoy, or, not, or, look for more, more.

What I do I do. What you do you do. De doo doo de da da da. But why? What is this? I'm so far gone, I'm inches below the Police Log and there's no turning back. Is this wasted space, wasted time?

That's the point. That's it. That's what? That's the point. We do things, we all do things, some of which we have to, some of which we want to, some of which fit neatly and pleasurably into both categories. Is that it? There's more. Like a TV infomercial, there's more. Always more.

What I'm saying is, I'm restless, nervous, edgy. I feel, see, sense the jaws of graduation and all its ramifications, both good and bad, closing in on me. The trap, the jaws, are poised, poised menacingly, ugly.

What do I want to do? Will I be doing what I want to be doing in a few short months? Where will I be? Where will you be? You, yes you! You can't have any pudding if you don't eat you're meat. How can you have any pudding if you don't eat you're meat? We know what the meat is; what's the pudding? Or who's the pudding? Where is the pudding? Will we ever get the pudding? Will we finish our meat and be denied pudding? Will we eat the wrong meat and be given the wrong pudding? Will we choke on the meat? Flip it to the dog, gobble our pudding and get no more?

The choices are there, the paths are clear; or are they? Obstacles confound, or constraints please. One person's door knob is another's hat rack. It's all for the benefit of us and we may or may not act accordingly. Do we do that thing, take off, live that way, enjoy that thing; or sit stagnant and die slowly?

ACLU Files Suit Over National Merit Scholarships

College Press Service

WASHINGTON - Young women don't get their fair share of National Merit Scholarships because the awards are based on tests that are biased against them, charges a lawsuit filed by the American Civil Liberties Union.

The Women's Rights Project of the ACLU filed a complaint Feb. 15 on behalf of the National Center for Fair & Open Testing, a Massachusetts-based group critical of standardized testing, with the U.S. Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights.

The suit charges the Educational Testing Service and the College Entrance Examination Board with violating law that bars recipients of federal funds from discriminating on the basis of sex. The College Board sponsors the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test, and the ETS administers it. Both groups receive federal funds. About $25 million in tuition aid is awarded every year through the National Merit Scholarships.

According to FairTest, more than three fifths of National Merit Scholarships go to boys because they score higher on the PSAT/NMSQT, even though girls earn better grades in both high school and college when matched for the same academic courses.

"Federal intervention is needed to ensure that girls get a fair shot at these valuable scholarships," said FairTest Executive Cinthia Schuman. "Even the test-makers; own research admits that the test underpredicts the performance of females and overpredicts the performance of males. For year, ETS, the College Board and national Merit have stonewalled well-documented protests from women's groups, civil rights activists and academic experts."

Summer Education Travel Opportunities Abound

By Amy Plummer
Special Correspondent
College Press Service

Hey, party animals, are you planning on spending another summer sacrificing brain cells and working on a case of skin cancer? While that may sound tempting, here's a newsflash: There's more fun awaiting you overseas.

As a matter of fact, thousands of burned-out college students find going abroad and occupying themselves with something otherworldly is just the ticket for getting reinvigorated. Oh, sure, summering abroad (or just using the word summering) was once reserved for troubadours, debutantes and literati, but now many students can follow their wanderlust.

The educational travel business has gotten so competitive lately, programs have to cater to students' whims-or wither and die. They finally figured out that college students want academic credit and their cherished summer freedom, so most of them have tried to become more flexible, like letting students decide when their individual programs start and releasing them on the weekends to travel to Timbuktu if they so desire. Most programs offer college credit on an optional basis, although some don't, if for no other reason than they're awesome on their own accounts.

If you're interested, start planning now because you can't wait until summer to sign up for these odysseys:

Make Merry In Madrid

Take courses in English or Spanish from an international faculty through St. Louis University's branch in Madrid, the only American university with an integrated campus in Europe. The Spaniards are legendary for invigorating the American campus on the Mississippi-imagine their fiestas on home turf! For eight weeks, live with a Spanish family or in a dorm for $850-$1,500 plus about $200 per credit hour for tuition. Airfare is extra. June 6-July 28. Application deadline: May 1. 1-800-758-3678.

Connect Cross-Culturally

Live as a member of a host family in one of 25 countries worldwide, but get the added benefit of traveling independently. The Federation of National Representations of the Experiment in International Living arranges your homestay, but you pick the start date and the length of time-one to four weeks. Why would you want to get away from your own parental units only to live with someone else's? You get to know the local people, immerse yourself in a foreign language, go to work one day with your host or visit a workplace of your future profession. Then you can take off and lie on the French Riviera for the rest of the summer, knowing that you accomplished something. Cost: $200-$1,000; Transportation is on you. You must apply at least eight weeks before you leave. 1-800-387-4210.

Keep Moving With Traveling Schools

Talk about paying attention to college student needs. The American Institute for Foreign Study offers two traveling study abroad programs - that's right, school that moves. The art and architecture program wanders through nine of Europe's acclaimed cities, while the more staid finance and marketing group pops into the continent's five fiscal centers. Other programs, lasting three to 12 weeks, are offered in Western Europe (including a London internship), Russia, Mexico and Japan. These trips will set you back $2,099 or $4,599 depending on how long you stay and how much you plan to eat. Bonus: currency fluctuations won't affect the price, and discounted airfares are available. Applications are due March 15, or tack on another $150. 1-800-727-2437 ext. 6087.

Quick Takes

The Council on International Educational Exchange has information on paid work, volunteer workcamps, study abroad and college credit in 33 countries. Their travel agency gets you great deals. Apply ASAP, preferably three months in advance. Ask for their excellent (and free!) magazine/catalog, Student Travels: 1-212-661-1414.

Lex American offers homestays in Japan and Korea lasting four to six weeks, $2,550-$3,000, including airfare from the West Coast. Credit is available. Families speak English. Deadline: May 1. 1-617-489-5800.

Amigos de las Americas has volunteer public health projects in Mexico, the Caribbean, Central and South America where you can hone leadership skills and improve the world. You can obtain advanced placement in Spanish/Portuguese classes. 1-800-231-7796.

Hostelling International can show you vacations at home and abroad that won't empty your pockets. Hike (and sample the wine of) the Chianti region of Italy, cycle the dunes of Cape Cod, raft the white water of Northern New Mexico, etc. $250-$1,525. Get a catalog of Discovery Tours by calling 1-202-783-6161.

Using the VAX, 101

Help on using this help.

Whenever you see anything in bold letters, it is a command that you can type in. All commands require a space between them (so the VAX can tell things apart). After typing a command, press the <return> key (this lets the VAX know that you want it to do something). Whenever you see something surrounded by <>'s it is a button on the keyboard that must be pressed, not a command to be typed.

FIRST Things FIRST

Getting to a local prompt from a VAX terminal.

Please type D, S, or O for an outside line > d <— d stands for directory

Reading the Newsgroups.

This is by far the best way for a new user to find out how to do new things. There are newsgroups for over 2,000 different topics (2,491 at last count). The topics range from how to use internet, to how to give back rubs. There's always something new in the newsgroups. So much, in fact, that no one person could ever read all of it.

Getting into the newsgroups

At a $ prompt, type news. After you connect, use the cursor keys to scroll up and down, and return to enter a group. Once in a group, use the cursor keys to scroll to an interesting posting, then press <return> to read it. After reading the posting, type dir [4 on the keypad] to see the listing of postings again, or dir/all [+ on the keypad] to see the listing of newsgroups. If you want to read the next posting, just press <return>. To exit out of news, type exit. This will return you to your $ prompt.

Using E-Mail (Electronic Mail).

Reading E-Mail

At a $ prompt, type mail. If you have new mail (you'll get a little message), press <return> to scroll through them. Type dir to see a listing of all your new mail messages if you have more than one. To read old mail (from previous sessions), type dir mail. This will take you from your "new mail" folder to your "mail" folder. Type the number of the mail message you want to read, or <return> to scroll through all of them.

Sending E-Mail

At a $ prompt, type mail. Type send. The VAX will now ask who to send it to. Type in the username of the person you want to send the message to. When you are asked for a subject, give a brief description such as, "This is just a test," or "Just wanted to say hello." Now you should enter your message. When done, press the <control> key, hold it down, then press z. Your message will be sent. If you didn't want to send the message, use c instead (it means cancel).

Exiting out of E-Mail

Type exit. You will be returned to a $ prompt.

Other thing you can do with the VAX.

telnet <— Our VAX can hook onto another internet connected computer anywhere!
ftp <— Just like gopher, but without the interface. Experts only!
games <— After hours only. When you first log in, use games as your username.

Of course, the best way to learn anything new on the VAX is to type help, anywhere and everywhere! If you have any questions that leave you absolutely stumped, mail me. My E-Mail address (which is my username), is "TUCK-ERR". When you get real ambitious, try mailing me at my internet address, "TUCKERR@WOODS.UML.EDU"@internet. If you can reach me at that address, you can reach everyone across the globe that has an internet address. Hint: you have one too! Have fun exploring!!!

Using the phone.

Yes, you can call and talk to someone online over the VAX without using a telephone!

To call someone

Type phone username (where username is the username of the person you want to call) at a $ prompt.

To pick up the phone

Type phone ans (short for answer) at a $ prompt.

To hang up the phone

Press <control> z while still on the phone to someone.

To exit the phone

Type exit at the % prompt.

Sex, Lies and Tabulated Surveys

WASHINGTON - College men are five to seven times as likely as women to lie in order to have sex, according to a recent survey on dishonesty in dating.

"It would appear that lying in order to have sex is more a male than a female behavior," the article in the Journal of American College Health concluded.

The survey of 171 male and female students was conducted in January 1991 at the University of Minnesota. The researchers, instructor James Rothenberger and graduate student Michael Stebleton, said they found the results disturbing for several reasons, one being that more monogamous men and women admitted to lying than nonmonogamous sexual partners. That could be the result of the size of the sample or a misunderstanding of the term "monogamous."

"It might also mean that, as monogamy becomes the only acceptable alternative in a 'safe-sex' world, we will see an increase in lying behavior," the researchers wrote. "Just as the Victorians claimed to have low rates of sexual activity but, in reality, rates of sexual activity remained constant, so today more people may identify themselves as monogamous when, in actuality, they may be sexually active outside of their primary relationship."

Among those who identified themselves as monogamous, 33.3 percent of the men answered "yes" to the question, "Have you ever told a lie in order to have sex?," while 6.8 percent of the women answered affirmatively. Yet only 22.2 percent of the nonmonogamous men and 3.3 percent of the women answered "yes."

On the other hand, women seemed more ready to believe that they were being lied to for sexual purposes than men. The survey showed that 43.2 percent of the monogamous women believed they had been lied to, compared with 36.4 percent of nonmonogamous men, while 56.7 percent of nonmonogamous women thought they had been lied to, compared with 22.2 percent of nonmonogamous men.

The results also are unsettling because of the potential consequences of lying if a partner is infected with HIV or another sexually transmitted disease. "In an era when diseases surrounding sexual activity have profound implications, all of us need to be aware that neither love nor hormonal activity is a shield against dishonesty," the researchers wrote.

Black Grads Seek Role Models

CARBONDALE, Ill. - Marwin Spiller said he experienced "major culture shock" when he moved from Chicago's South Side to rural Southern Illinois University at Carbondale to pursue a doctorate in sociology.

Particularly distressing was the lack of black professors as role models.

"There are so few black students or professors in graduate school. It's even more extreme than at the undergraduate level," said Spiller, who is president of the National Black Graduate Student Association (NBGSA).

Spiller, whose doctoral studies focus on racism in criminal justice and urban housing, is enrolled in a department that has no black faculty and only two other blacks pursuing advanced degrees.

"Studies have shown that many African-American graduate students don't complete their studies, and I'm convinced it isn't due to difficult or demanding academic programs," Spiller said. "It's because of non-supportive and alienating academic environments."

The NBGSA seeks to reverse this trend, linking 1,500 black student members from all academic disciplines to intellectual circles and communications networks nationwide, Spiller said.

"The association tries to establish a community among black graduate students, to share research ideas among each other and relax in a comfortable atmosphere where ideas are received and new ideas formulated," he says.

The NBGSA will hold its annual conference May 18-22 at Mississippi State University in Starkville, Miss. The organization also fosters a feeling of belonging through a biannual newsletter, and members communicate through the African-American Student Network, a discussion network on BITNET, an international computer network.

Naked Man Gets No Laughs

GAINESVILLE, Fla. - Twenty years ago, students and professors erupted in laughter when streakers dashed in and out of classrooms.

Times have changed.

Several faculty members from the College of Journalism and Communication expressed outrage after a naked man burst into an advertising classroom, loudly identified himself as "Batman" and beat a hasty retreat, the Independent Florida alligator reported.

Professor Sallie Middlebrook, who was teaching the class, said she didn't appreciate the interruption.

"He spread his arms and legs and said, 'Batman,'" Middlebrook said. "I was standing there in awe."

Middlebrook said she locked the door after the slender male with light-brown hair left the room. "I can see the humor (in the situation)," she said, "but to me it's not funny." Streaking is not as innocent an activity as it once was. "You don't know what motivates that," she said. "Times have changed so much."

Meanwhile, Journalism Dean Ralph Lowenstein said he found the incident "absolutely disgusting."

"I believe if the person can be found he ought to be prosecuted," he said.

Finally, something for college that just got less expensive.

The Anatomy of the Citibank Classic card: a body of services and peace of mind for students, now with No Annual Fee.

For years, scientists could only theorize about the Citibank Classic Visa® card, unable to actually observe anything below its epidermal surface (i.e. the plastic). Surely the highly intelligent services were evidence of an advanced brain. But with the latest advances in x-ray technology, and when the light could catch the various parts just so, it was confirmed: the Scientists theorize that the mind of the Citibank Classic Visa cardmember (Fig. A) is secure because it receives superior service; the mind of the non-Citibank Classic Visa cardmember (Fig. B) is not secure because—could it be?—it has a screw loose?

Citibank Classic Visa card is head to toe more evolved than ever imagined. ¶ At its backbone are 3 services to cover the purchases you make on the card. Starting at the Lower Costal Spine, we see Citibank Price Protection can assure you of the best price. All you have to do is discover the same item advertised in print for less, within 60 days, and Citibank will refund the difference up to $150! Along the Oops-It-Slipped Disc, Buyers Security™ can cover those purchases against accidental damage, fire or theft, for 90 days from the date of purchase¹; and Citibank Lifetime Warranty™ allows one to extend the warranty for the expected service life of eligible products up to 12 years². So if you ever buy a walkman, a stereo, whatever, it will be reassuring to know that Citibank can bend and be flexible while still lending support. ¶ The backbone is then connected to the cranium or headbone. Look at the bottom of the page. The Citibank Photocard has the head of the cardholder, as well as his or her own signature, right on the front. That way, it will help prevent fraud. It will also make a good form of ID, since you get to choose your own photo. ¶ But what about the Nervous System? The fact is, it doesn't have one, not in the spinal cord nor in the brain. What it has is the Very Calm System. Because even if your credit card gets stolen, or gets lost, an involuntary muscle called the Extendus Anewcardeus activates the Lost Wallet™ Service which can replace your card usually within 24 hours. ¶ As suspected, there's another involuntary muscle: the heart—a beating and caring heart, big enough to give students special discounts and savings. You'll receive a $20 Airfare Discount on domestic flights³; savings on mail order purchases, sports equipment, magazines and music; a low variable interest rate of 15.4%⁴; and, No Annual Fee. (In other words, the card itself doesn't cost a forelimb and a hindlimb.) ¶ Naturally the heart of the Citibank Visa card pumps life and personalized customer service into all its parts, 24 hours a day. So no matter what the question you might have concerning your card, you need only call the 800 number. You'll find Citibank has a neck they are eager to stick out for you. They will always lend an ear. Or a hand. They will keep an eye out for you. They will put their best foot forward. Etc. ¶ So call to apply. You don't need a job or a cosigner. And call if you'd like your photo added to your regular Citibank Classic Visa card. The number is 1-800-CITIBANK (1-800-248-4226), extension 19. ¶ If we take an overview of the whole body of services that make up the Citibank Classic Visa card, and consider that it will facilitate building a credit history, then you must shake a leg, flex your index finger and call today.

More Singles at Umass Lowell

With the CHOICES [The on-campus room selection process] process right around the corner, the office Office of Residence Life has announced plans to open up more single rooms on campus next semester. Larry Seigel, the Director of Residence Life, reported that they plan to incorporate single rooms into the second and third floors of both Leitch and Bourgeois halls.

These buildings will join the ranks of Fox and Concordia hall which now house single rooms. Said Seigel, "With the overwhelming success of Fox hall this year, and the continuing success of Concordia, [we] have decided to listen to the residents and offer more [singles] next year." There was a waiting list for singles all of last semester and one still exits this semester.

Single rooms are more popular because they offer greater privacy, controlled living singles and offer a better chance for academic success. Last semester 15 percent of the students in Fox Hall and 22 percent of the students in Concordia Hall got a 3.5 or better, which were higher than the percentages of any other building on campus.

The rooms will cost 100 dollars more a semester in Concordia and 150 dollars more in Fox, Leitch, and Bourgeois because they are actually double rooms. All rooms in Fox, Leitch, and Bourgeois will contain one bed, and two of everything else. The Office of Residence Life will consider opening more singles if the interest is there.

If you live on campus, all you need to know about how to get a single will be included in the CHOICES brochure which will be out soon. If you live off campus you can call the Office of Residence Life at 934-2100.

The Fifth Annual Residence Life Academic Awards Banquet

On Sunday, February 27, from 11 a.m. to about 1:30 p.m., over 400 resident students and guests attended the fifth annual awards banquet hosted by the Office of Residence Life. They were entertained by a student band while waiting for the ceremony to begin. Over 180 resident students received award certificates for outstanding academic achievement (earning over a 3.4 last semester), and several received gift certificates from the Barnes & Noble bookstore. The speakers at the function included Larry Siegel, the Director of Residence Life, Leo F. Associate Vice Chancellor, and

Dr. Lisa Johnson, the Assistant Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

One thing that many students were happy about was Larry Siegel's announcement that those students who were invited would be getting an extra bonus. During 'Choices', the process of signing up for next year's housing, these students will receive a preferred status when selecting a room.

Staff Spotlight

Another person here at the university that goes the extra mile for the students

Leo Racicot

This weeks spotlight falls on Leo Racicot, night supervisor at O'Leary library. Leo humbly believes "the students' tuition pays my salary and I give as much as I can" and give he does. Now in his ninth year with the university, he still enjoys helping the student excel. Many alumni still write him periodically or drop in to share their stories of success.

Recently, Leo has come to view UMass Lowell as "the Harvard on the Merrimack," referring to recent improvements in the quality of education here. Naturally he is concerned over recent budget cuts at the library, but points to the new Adaptive Computing Lab recently established on the first floor. This lab offers a Kurtweiler reading machine for the blind and tutoring services for the physically challenged.

The library is presently staffed by three full-time employees and 14 or 15 student assistants, without whom, Leo says, the library simply couldn't function.

Leo lives in Lowell with his four-pawed feline friend Mickey. He enjoys amateur photography and reading books when he's not helping others find them. He is refreshing and down-to-earth. Next time your lost in O'Leary, drop by the circulation desk and ask for Leo.

kiNexus is the nation's first largest national, regional, and local computerized database of students and alumni seeking employment. It provides you with exposure to large fortune 500 companies as well as medium and small local companies nationwide. Employers use kiNexus to find candidates for full and part-time career positions, internships, coop and summer jobs. kiNexus is available free of charge to students and alumni.

If you are interested in using the database, please come to the Placement and Career Planning Office to pick up forms.

Attention All Volunteers

The Office of Community Service is beginning it's annual search for volunteers who are currently serving the University and/or the Community of Greater Lowell.

You may be saying to yourself "I am not a volunteer. I help out at my sisters school once a month but that is not service" or you may be saying to yourself "I participated in the Walk for Hunger and Homelessness here in Lowell and helped to clean up the Merrimack River but that does not make me a volunteer." You are wrong! You are a volunteer. You are doing service. You gave (and may still be giving) of yourself and your time for the betterment of those people and places around you. All service big or small deserves recognition. We in the Office of Community Service want to recognize you for your generous efforts. The recognition processes has many parts. Please come by our office in the basement of Cumnock (C-7) to learn more about the process and to pick up a nomination sheet for yourself and/or a friend.

You Deserve Recognition.

Proposed by: Julie Thomas, SGA Treasurer
Date: February 15, 1994
Article XXI. (Now Reads)
THE JOINT COMMITTEE FOR CLUB/ORGANIZATION BUDGETS
 The Joint Committee for Club/Organization Budgets shall be composed of the membership of both the A.C. and Senate Finance Committees, and shall be chaired by the A.C. Business Manger.
 The Joint Committee shall be responsible for reviewing the initial and yearly funding requests of approved clubs and organizations. Recommendations by the Joint Committee must be approved by the Senate before budget implementation.
 Requests for club/organization disbursement within the currently approved budget will be reviewed by the A.C. Finance Committee and send with recommendations to the A.C. for approval.
 Any request which is not included within the group's currently approved budget shall be reviewed by the Joint Finance Committee and then sent with recommendation to the Senate for final approval.
 Proposed Amendment: to remove Article XXI in its entirety, due to the fact that it has become obsolete. The currently standing Finance Committee performs all of the above noted duties.

The Governance Committee would like to apologize to any club or organization for any delays that they may have encountered. We are working on new ways and ideas to help expedite the process. If you have any questions or problems, please feel free to call me at SGA (x. 5004). We are here to help the students, but we need their help too!

Mardi Gras begins with top notch comedian

Anthony Clark has been seen on Showtime and Evening at the Improv.

Nationally known comedian Anthony Clark played to a small crowd in Cumnock Hall

James A. Kimble
Arts & Entertainment

If you can laugh at a comedian without having to think about his jokes, he's funny. If the comedian can't finish his story because he's already laughing at the punchline that the audience doesn't yet know, then he's very funny. When he can stereotype a waitress at the International House of Pancakes and the audience knows exactly who he's talking about, that is talent. Anthony Clark made people laugh until it hurt with descriptions of his sister, grandmother, and an air stewardess. Clarks show kicked off the Universities not so successful "Madi Gras" week this past Monday night.

If you were fortunate enough to make the Clark show, you were one of the fortunate and well informed. Clark remains as one of the few stand up comedians that actually earns his living by making people genuinely laugh. Talking about your family has been done for years by stand-up comics and the only time it truly works is when the delivery is funny. Clarks effeminate impersonations combined with his native Virginian accent makes him a natural comedian. His effortlessness comes through when he's laughing as much as the audience is. Many comedians that share the same stage as Clark depend too much on the material itself. When people have to think too much about any given joke it loses its spontaneity.

The strongest part and the core of Clark's act is his impersonations. His grandmother who watches too much Geraldo and thinks that everything wrong with the world is because of crack. Also, he is one of the few comedians that can refer back to a punchline in a previous joke and build on it with whatever subject or person he is currently talking about.

When a comedian has to make fun at the audience for laughs, or demands audience participation for his act, then he's playing for the wrong crowd, especially at UMASS-Lowell. Most people who came to see Clark just wanted to kick back and be entertained for about an hour or so, and that's exactly what Clark did.

Angie-- the extreme

Joseph Eubanks
Arts & Entertainment

Angie stars veteran actress Geena Davis, (The Fly, League of Their Own, and Thelma and Louise). This film is set in the Bensonhurst section of New York City. Geena Davis portrays Angie, a secretary at an upscale computer magazine. Every character of any substance in the film is made overly ethnic. The effort put forth to show that this film centers around Italian-Catholics is wasted and dull. Davis' character Angie's New York accent is so bad and artificial that it takes away from what little good is in the film. Even her plumber boyfriend, Vinny, has a distinctive New York accent but at least his is believable. All of the characters of this film are Italian

Book Reviews—for better or worse

Disclosure –Michael Crichton's newest novel

by will

Having read everything the man's ever written I found disclosure to be thought provoking and disturbing. I don't want to give the whole story away, but to summarize it's the story of a male computer manager is sexually harassed and then politically screwed by corporate politics. He works to defend himself and arrive at some sort of justice. Despite the interesting subject matter I felt that the quality of the writing was lacking. There were parts of the book which I felt were implausible. I must say though that I could not put it down and it was enjoyable as escapist, quick reading. It also served as a good conversation piece, the politics and reverse harassment. On a scale from one to ten I would rate it a six.

The Lost Continent–Bill Bryson

by Evelyn C. Leeper

This is the funniest book I have read since Joe Keenan's PUTTING ON THE RITZ, and the funniest non-fiction book since I don't know when. Bryson, a native Iowan now living in England, returns to America to tour its small towns and its big cities. Covering 38,000 miles and thirty-eight states, Bryson reminisces about his childhood (his father would go only to free vacation attractions, and stopped at every historical marker), the transition of small-town America into strip malls, and his quest for a baseball cap with a plastic turd on the brim.

As with most humor books, a sample is the best recommendation: "Nevada has the highest crime rate of any state, the highest rape rate, the second highest violent crime rate, the highest highway fatality rate, the second highest rate of gonorrhea, and the highest proportion of transients. . . It has more prostitutes than any other state in America. It has a long history of corruption and strong links with organized crime. And its most popular entertainer is Wayne Newton. So you may understand why I crossed the border from Utah with a certain disquiet." (Particularly since he also says that Utah is the only place on the face of the earth where Mormons will not come up to you and try to convert you—because they figure everyone in Utah already is one.)

Though Bryson loves to attack the mediocre, he is also ready to praise the praiseworthy, be it a town or a meal or an attitude. I highly recommend this nostalgic, funny, and thoroughly enjoyable travelogue.

Indians R US: Culture and Genocide in Native North America–Ward Churchill

by Lisa Stalnaker Hellwig

This is Ward's latest collection of essays written over the past few years. He writes about Columbus Day (specifically, how Columbus Day is actually a celebration of Genocide); Sports Team Mascots (and how we should be "honoring" all ethnic groups in the US the same way we're honoring Native Americans); The Men's Movement and how it randomly 'borrows' spiritual rituals and beliefs from any and all cultures; A review and analysis of Jerry Mander's book, In the Absence of the Sacred, and how despite Mander's good intentions, there are very few native voices in his book, just more 'Euro-Americans who know what's best for the Natives'.

Ward Churchill is a co-director of Colorado AIM, a spokesperson for the Leonard Peltier Defense Committee, and an associate professor of American Indian Studies and Communications at University of Colorado/Boulder. He writes with both anger and humor, making me laugh even as I squirmed when I caught myself being described as one of those 'well-intentioned' Euro-Americans who think I know what's best for Native Americans. Each chapter is followed by footnotes, which have the effect of enlarging one's moods.

Fascinating Rhythms: Playing at Cumnock... A Celebration of Jazz Tap

Press Release--

The University of Massachusetts Lowell Center for the Arts will present "Fascinating Rhythms: A Celebration of Jazz Tap" on Saturday, March 12 at 8:00 P.M. Now on a fourteen city New England tour produces by Dance Umbrella, "Fascinating Rhythms" is a gathering of leading and legendary jazz greats who come together to trade beats with a live jazz trio. The tour features Broadway star Savion Glover, legendary master tapper, Jimmy Slyde, plus Herbin van Cayseele, Boston tap greats Josh Hilberman and Dianne Walker, and New York's Drummin' Two Deep. Starting at 6:30 PM the evening of the performance, Sally Sommer, a critic for Dance Magazine and Duke University Professor specializing in American popular dance, will present "Feet, Talk to Me!" a talk accompanied by slides. Using oddball clips from TV and movies, Ms. Sommer's presentation will put tap into an historical and social context.

Currently starring on Broadway in Jelly's Last Jam, nineteen year old Savion Glover is one of the youngest males to be nominated for a Tony Award (Black and Blue) and the youngest person to have been awarded a choreography grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Jimmy Slyde has numerous stage, television and film credits, including A Star is Born, The Cotton Club and TAP! For the past year, he has been performing and headlining a weekly club act at New York City's Le Cave.

A regular guest of Jimmy Slyde's at La Cave in New York, Herbin van Cayseele presents a contemporary style of tap that blends hip hop, funk and the traditional jazz idioms of bebop and swing. He performed in Lincoln Center's The Majesty of Tap and has toured extensively throughout Europe.

Rated one of the "Top 10 Dance Events of 1991" by the Boston Globe, Josh Hilberman is a leading voice among the new generation of tap dancers. Recent career highlights include a sold-out New York City Concert with Gregory Hines and widely successful performances in Germany and Austria.

Dianne Walker was the only female "hooper" to perform in the Broadway production of Black and Blue. She has performed in clubs and festivals throughout the U.S. and has appeared on the PBS "Great Performances" Dance in America special.

First discovered in Times Square by Savion Glover, Drummin' Two Deep-Larry Wright and Jared (J.R.) Crawford now appear regularly in the TV Saturday feature "NBA Inside Stuff." They have also performed on the MTV Awards and in the film "Sliver."

Accompanying the artists of "Fascinating Rhythms" will be a trio of musicians including composer and pianist Paul Arslanian, drummer Artie Cabral, and bassist John Lockwood, professor of improvisation and jazz studies at New England Conservatory.

The tour of "Fascinating Rhythms" is a special project of the New England Presenters consortium and is funded in part by the New England Foundation for the Arts and the Massachusetts Foundation for the Humanities.

The March 12 performance will take place in Durgin Hall on the University's south campus at the corner of Pawtucket and Wilder Streets. Free, lighted parking is nearby.

Tickets are priced at $15/13/11, or $13/11/9 if purchased by March 4. Student tickets are $7.50/6.50/5.50. Tickets can be ordered with MasterCard/Visa by calling the Center at 508/934-4444.

Showtimes: Tuesday & Wednesday at 8:00 p.m.

except two. Oddly enough the man that Angie has an affair with while pregnant is Irish and his stepmother turns out to be Jewish. Angie even makes mention that her father's wife is non-Italian. The makers of this picture made it ethnic for all the wrong reasons. Whether it's Menace to Society, Boys N' the Hood, Scarface, Good Fellas, or even the Godfather trilogy, films center around a particular ethnic persuasion but certain aspects of their character should not be over emphasized (i.e. dress, living conditions, and accents.)

Davis does a disservice to her acting credibility by taking this one-dimensional role and starring in this weakly written film. Davis has been both a good supporting actress as well as lead actress. In this comedy-drama, she does nothing to enhance her acting career.

The Veldt's Afrodisiac introduces soul, pop, and an uplifting sound

James A. Kimble
Arts & Entertainment

The uplifting pop sound of the Veldt is well complimented by its deep sounding vocals and soulful groove. The bands influence with such bands as the Cure and the Cocteau Twins is prevalent but not plagiaristic.

Afrodisiac is the bands debut album and is well worth its cost. The album contains 18 tracks and includes two remixes of their first single "Soul in A Jar."

The usual topics of love, people, and relationships is no ground breaking stretch for any band, but when the songs are presented in an original format that's difficult to compare with any other band something is being done right. The Veldt is taking music in a direction that it should be going, especially with the alternative mainstream booming larger than ever before, turning out a plethora of bands that all sound the same. If you're looking for an album to motivate you, Afrodisiac is for you.

MOSTLY ALL NEW JOKE.

Difference & Diversity

Does anyone out there remember the public service announcements that used to run on ABC during Saturday morning cartoons. There was Conjunction Junction and The Story of a Bill, but one in particular stuck with me throughout the years. It portrayed America as a melting pot where people of different cultures came together and lived in peace and harmony.

I believed it. I cannot remember how old I was when I realized that it was nothing more than a dream which after decades of getting closer has begun to fade away. For years people fought, struggled, and died to be accepted as part of the whole, now they fight to be separate.

In the cities, gerrymandering has returned. Only instead of trying to break minorities up so they can't elect candidates, voting lines are being drawn so that minorities can have their own politicians. Some have even gone so far as to say a white man has no business trying to represent a black woman. With arguments like that racial harmony seems hopeless.

At Colleges and Universities across the country minority students complain that they need their own dorms. At these same schools twenty-five years ago their parents fought to be allowed to live in the same house as other races. We call this progress?

We must look at the world and see where this road leads. Countries where people of different races have this "Us Vs. Them" mentality sit, stuck in civil wars that will never end until some one sits everyone involved down and says, "Look, we're all human beings, and we're stuck with each other."

Celtics guard, Dee Brown, once said he'd rather be down South...at least there you know who the racists are. He meant Down South people wouldn't even serve him. Here, Up South (as he called it), they'll serve you but treat you like garbage.

Martin Luther King dreamed of a day when people would "not be judged by the color of their skin but by their character."

I pray for my children and my children's children that this doesn't remain just a dream. Now is not the time to stress what makes us different but instead what makes us the same.

Response to Ward's Article

Such dilemmas we college students face! Along with classes, resumes, and career decisions, I find another dilemma in which I must choose between letting one as ignorant as Shawn Ward go away unscathed by not responding to such an asinine display of wasted paper, or justifying his meaningless existence by showing him that we did indeed notice the gross injustice he felt was worthy of your Feb. 21 issue.

I'm not sure what function Shawn Ward serves when he is not inflicting his opinions on the rest of the world, but I really do not know what this column is doing on the SGA page. I realize that "this article is not the consent of the UMass Lowell SGA," but does SGA consent to the printing of this article? One with a half decent command of the English language should be able to tell the difference. But "this is merely the expressed concerns of one individual students." Why not expound on that sentence, Shawn? You could change the wording to "one, sole, lone, individual, student, by himself." (You could even learn how to use a comma.) That seems to work better for your purposes. Redundancy seems to be on the upswing in the 90's.

But I digress. Let us look into the column itself. We all must thank Shawn for his self-proclaimed miracle solution. Surely, one who worships Ronald Reagan and Rush Limbaugh must have his head enough together to solve all of this university's problems. I know I thank the Lord every day for Shawn's existence. Let's look into his ideas.

I find it refreshing to hear the opinion of someone who is as contemporary and informed as Shawn. Apparently, his hatred of liberals (and apparently libraries) gives him a right to resort to name calling and public Jeff Nazzaro-bashing. Not ever having spoken to Jeff personally, I can't speak for him, but I'm sure Shawn knows him so well that he feels it necessary to devote one third of the SGA page trying to humiliate Jeff and/or the "Liberal pansies" who attend this university.

My CHIEF concern (pun intended) is the fact that many people read The Connector. Some of these people, just maybe, aren't personal friends of Shawn's who find this sort of thing terribly funny. It's fun and games to trash everyone at the university who isn't part of your own personal fan club (read: clique), including all of the people who agree that the Chief symbol creates a bad image of UMass Lowell, all of the UMass Lowell sports teams, anyone who might consider themselves liberal, and last but not least, Jeff Nazzaro, whose was unfortunate enough to have his name plastered across the paper for no apparent reason but to appease the temper of a childish, ignorant boor. (Incidentally, for those of you who are checking, the previous sentence is a bit long, but it is grammatically correct. Someone should probably explain this to Shawn.) I realize that Jeff does not need me to defend him, as he will probably take care of that himself, or choose not to, but I feel that students who wish to be involved in activities at this university should not have to fear that they will be tarred and feathered in the school newspaper!

This article does not necessarily reflect the view of the school administration, the UMass Lowell sports teams, SGA, Jeff Nazzaro, or the rest of the free world, but does express the concerns of at least two individuals who find it terribly frustrating to deal with peers as illiterate and ignorant as Mr. Ward.

More on Ward...

It took a considerable amount of time for me to decide whether Shawn Ward's letter in the February 22 edition of The Connector is a joke or an honest attempt at being as ignorant as possible. Either way, this backward display reflects poorly on the Student Government Association and on the university. It was also a struggle to decide if such a farce merits a response, and perhaps it doesn't, but this foul example of audacity and arrogance should not go unnoticed. Ignoring it would be the same as agreeing with it.

For starters, Shawn's feeble attempt at wit by substituting "left-wing Wacos" for "left-wing wackos" might have worked, had it made sense. What liberals are going to be fanatical about religion, much less be violent about it? They're pansies, remember, and not war-loving, as he so eloquently pointed out. Is Shawn even this clever? Perhaps this pun is merely a typographical error. That would be a shame, as the pun is the only element that, however inappropriate, gives his ranting any depth.

As for his offensive use of the word "pansy", people who resort to an ad hominem argument usually do so in order to compensate for some shortcoming in themselves. These kinds of unsolicited sweeping statements lead the reader to wonder what inadequacy Shawn is covering for.

What is Shawn's concept of liberalism? He never really says. If he thinks Jeff Nazzaro, a fairly moderate guy in my estimation, is the epitome of liberal thinking, he must come from the Rush Limbaugh school of Fascism. His calling Jeff a pansy is an effective example of an uneducated personal affront, which makes for poor arguing. A peeve he has with any individual should be taken care of privately—there is no need to slander an innocent person.

Shawn is trying so hard to say something but he never really makes a valid point. The next time he makes a statement he should think about presenting his facts in a way that does not offend so many people, and perhaps someone will attempt to understand his views. As far as I can see, Shawn Ward's idea of a liberal is a person who does not agree with him.

The Deadline for the March 21st Issue of the Connector will be Monday, March 7th at 6:00pm. Please keep this in mind when planning your submissions and club announcements.

"Smoking or Health"

Hi folks! I seem to be getting some response to my proposal to ban smoking in the cafeterias now. So, I thought I'd write another article.

Second-hand smoke is an irritant and harmful to your health. I can remember last year when I went to a Suzanne Vega concert at the Avalon night club that it was very smoky in there but there wasn't a whole helluva lot I could do about it. After the concert my throat was very sore and irritated. And the next couple of days, I walked around with a nasty sore throat. It's not very pleasant. Perhaps you have had similar stories? I ask you, "Is the cost of seeing your favorite singer, tolerating an allergic reaction to second-hand smoke?" In a like manner, usually the cost of eating in the cafeteria or playing a ping pong or pool game in McGauvran Student Union is breathing in irritating and dangerous second-hand smoke.

Most public places do not have adequate ventilation to accommodate smokers & non-smokers. This University is no exception. It would take VERY costly equipment to achieve this task. If people smoke inside a building, it will enter the air & spread to all areas (Students of science know this as an example of the law of concentration gradients. Gases will automatically move from an area of higher to lower concentrations).

Because 2nd-hand or aide stream smoke is dispersed by the air, nonsmokers inhale less poison than smokers do (tobacco smoke is a Class A carcinogen according to the EPA). But, the nonsmoker is still at risk from exposure to 2nd-hand smoke and the mainstream smoke that the smoker exhales. What, do you ask, is the nonsmokers at risk for? They are at risk for:

1. Allergies and suppression of the immune system.
2. Chronic bronchitis & pulmonary emphysema.
3. Cancer of the pancreas, bladder, esophagus, mouth, larynx and/or lungs.
4. Coronary heart disease.
5. Shortened life expectancy (Core Concepts in Health. Insel. 91) And also, 3,000 NON-smokers in this country will get lung cancer and 3,000 NON-smokers will DIE because of passive smoking.

Also, another unpleasant side effect of smoking for non-smokers is tobacco odor. Have you ever gone to a party where people were smoking and noticed later, or even the next day, a strong odor of tobacco in your clothes and hair? Smoke is strongly attracted to our bodies. (Now I'm gonna get a bit technical sign) Burning tobacco smoke causes a high electrical potential, while our bodies, mostly filled with water, have a low electrical potential. Remember the law of concentration gradients? Smile What this means is that smoke in a room will be attracted and stick tenaciously to you, like iron filings are attracted to a magnet. What causes the smell is the ketones and aldehydes in tobacco smoke, and the tar, also from the smoke, causes these chemicals to adhere to you. Smokers may not be able to detect these odors because smoke destroys the inner lining of the nose. Pleasant, huh? Studies have shown that the smoke contamination can be so intense that air conditioning systems can work harder by as much as 600% to control the smell. (Insel, 91) And that can be expensive.

What I found surprising researching this is that studies have found that the levels of carbon monoxide (a poison from tobacco smoke) in rooms where people smoke can be higher than those allowed by the Federal Air Quality Standards for outside air! What kind of country is this? I see a large discrepancy between what ought to be done and what is being done. That's life, I guess?

Anyway, it is clear that passive smoking is irritating and deleterious to your health. So I ask the smokers to think about others before they light up next time in the cafeterias, student unions, and the halls of North Campus. And nonsmokers, please tell your smoking friends to refrain from smoking around you and in public places. It may take awhile before a law is passed to ban smoking at this University but in the interim I encourage you to discuss this issue amongst your friends and colleagues. Smokers, are you willing to go outside for a few minutes to smoke in order to support clean, non irritating air inside for nonsmokers? It will make nonsmokers VERY Happy smile) You want to quit smoking, don't you smokers? One survey revealed that 92% of all smokers say they would like to quit.

Many strong emotions can arise from this issue. An official petition banning smoking may be coming around shortly. 500 or more signatures would be beneficial in seeing that this comes about.

Newton connects, faxes, schedules, prints, searches, files, communicates.

And subtracts.

We told you the Newton® MessagePad™ was intelligent, but at this price it's positively shrewd.

What other pocket-sized item can go everywhere you go and give you access to all the scattered parts of your life—the people and places, classes and meetings, phones and faxes, mail and messages? It's practically like having your own personal assistant.

Newton coordinates your address book, to-do list and calendar to make sure you're in the right place at the right time. And the alarm reminds you when the things you have to do are due.

Newton allows you to collect ideas and information on the go and then transfer them to your Windows PC or Macintosh® computer to include in papers or presentations.* Newton lets you print, send faxes and even receive pager messages.* Subscribe to NewtonMail™ and you can exchange messages with other subscribers, and with users of other popular electronic services such as the Internet and CompuServe.*

The array of available software titles helps you handle most everything from complex math formulas to slide presentations. For example, GoFigure offers you the choice of more than a dozen types of calculators, and DrawPad converts rough sketches and raw numbers into presentation-quality graphics.

So visit your authorized Apple campus reseller and see what the Newton can do for you.

We may have subtracted from the price, but the uses for a Newton MessagePad are only going to multiply.

"JACK & THE BEANSTALKER"

THERE WAS THIS CRAZY GUY NAMED GEORGE. HE HAD A BEAN OBSESSION. HE PLASTERED HIS WALLS WITH PICTURES OF BEANS.

OF COURSE, COFFEE BEANS HAD AN EXTRA SPECIAL EFFECT ON HIM.

ANYWAY, ONE DAY, HE SPOTTED THE BIGGEST, JUICEST, MOST SCRUMPTIOUS BEAN HE'D EVER SEEN.

UNFORTUNATELY, IT WAS ON FARMER JACK'S WINDOWSILL.

DAY AFTER DAY, HE WENT TO JACK'S TO SEE THE BEAN.

FINALLY, JACK HAD TO ASK.

OH-KAAAAY... LOOK, IF YOU WANT IT SO BAD, WHY DON'T YOU JUST TAKE IT?

TAKE IT? YOU MEAN I'D ACTUALLY POSSESS SUCH A WONDERFULLY EXCEPTIONAL HARICOT* SUCH AS THE ONE I'VE BEEN STARING AT FOR DAYS?!

UMASS LOWELL RECYCLES

The Environmental Health & Safety (EHS) dept. and the Society of Env. Scientists (SES) are happy to announce that the UMass Lowell recycling room will be reopened here on North Campus, a staff of volunteers from SES and EHS will be on hand Monday thru Friday from 9-3 to accept recyclable goods. We encourage students participation in this recycling effort so our university can be credited as a "recycling university." At present, only small amounts of paper & cans are recycled and the hope is to greatly increase this number.

The recycle room is located on the 2nd floor corner between Falmouth & pasteur (near the College of Marketing Office.) Anyone interested in volunteering should stop by the recycle room, the SES club room, OH 202 or call ext. 6666 and speak with one of the volunteers.

Watch for our weekly updates here in The Connector.

Yes folks, these are just some of the things we have planned for spring semester. What? Not enough? Well, we are planning to see Medea when it comes to the Lowell Auditorium. But feel free to suggest things! For instance, instead of going to The Coffee Mill some Friday night, we could go to a play. Or a poetry slam.
And don't forget our journal, the Lowell Pearl. Submit your stuff! Let's have a great semester!

Chancellor's Medal Commencement Awards

The Chancellor's Medal Award has been established to cite the efforts of members of the senior class of 1994 for service to the university and community. A maximum of six awards will be presented at the annual commencement exercises by Chancellor William T. Hogan.

Qualifications will be reviewed by Committee composed of members of University Life staff.

Guidelines

1. Candidates Statement:

In 500 words or less please indicated the reasons you feel you qualify as candidate for this award. Please include only those efforts in which you actively participated. This statement must be typewritten, in paragraph form, and on an 8 1/2" x 11" sheet of paper. No resumes will be accepted. We want you to select and highlight those activities you feel made the most significant contribution to others. ON CAMPUS PARTICI-PATION AND COMMUNITY OFF-CAMPUS INVOLVEMENT WILL BE CON-SIDERED>

2. SUBMISSION OF PAPERS:

The nominee's statement, along with a maximum of 5 nominations, attached, must be submitted as a package to:

Lost but Not Forgotten

Every year, approximately 50,000 people die in alcohol related accidents. Although we hear about these tragedies through the media time and time again, we never realize how devastating they are until they hit home. The Wellness Committee is asking for 200 volunteers to participate in an event which we hope will bring a more personal awareness to UMass Lowell. Those who volunteer will be asked to paint their faces white and dress in white in memory of those who die in alcohol related accidents. They will not speak at all and will have cards explaining their situation. If you are interested, please call extension 2100 and leave your name and a contact phone number.

Thursday

Information booths from 11 a.m to 1 p.m. in the Southwick Commuter Lounge and the South Campus Dining Hall.

On paper the game looked over before it even began. The men's basketball team had their work cut out for them facing highly ranked LeMoyne college in the opening round of the playoffs.

LeMoyne hammered UML by 19 points and 28 points in the regular season meetings, but the Chiefs rose to the occasion to secure an eight point overtime playoff victory.

Brent Oakleaf lead the Chiefs in both rebounds (14) and points (22), and helped anchor the inside with Jeichael "The Real Deal" Henderson (12pts, 10 rbs).

Ricky Spencer and Spencer Staggs (no relation) hit clutch three pointers in the closing minutes to give the Chiefs the advantage at the final gun.

The Lady chiefs continued their winning ways with an impressive 85-59 victory against Southern Connecticut. Senior standout Darlene Orlando-Ciarcia --who is a candidate for every post season honor except the Hobey Baker Award -- chipped in 29 points to lead the scoring.

Freshman Debby Henderson was a terror on the boards hauling down 16 rebounds, and Nora "Doobie" Baston added six assists to round out the box scores.

Defenseless Chiefs Drop Two to UNH

Wildcats rip lackluster Chiefs for ten goals and two W's

Sports Information
Press Release

CHIEFS vs. UNH:

The Chiefs went into the weekend looking to clinch second place and keep the pressure on league-leader Boston University for the regular season crown. Instead, the Chiefs dropped two games to the University of New Hampshire Wildcats and B.U. became just the third team in HOCKEY EAST history to win the regular season title.

Playing their final game at venerable Snively Arena on Friday, the Chiefs came out listless against the suddenly rejuvenated Wildcats (3-0-1 in their last four). UNH broke a scoreless tie with two goals in the last five minutes of the first period to take a 2-0 lead. After senior RW Normand Bazin got the Chiefs on the board at 7:14 of the second period with his 13th goal of the season, the Wildcats scored four unanswered goals before the end of the period to take a 6-1 lead into the locker room after two periods.

Junior C Eric Brown scored an unassisted shorthanded goal and junior D Paul Botto scored his first career goal in the third period for the 6-3 final score.

The next night, the Chiefs fell behind again as the Wildcats got the only goal of the first period. Bazin tied the game with a powerplay goal at 15:29 of the second period, but the Wildcats regained the lead 49 seconds later when Jason Dexter scored his second goal of the game. Senior RW/C Mike Murray tied the contest in the final minute of the period with a powerplay goal.

The Wildcats got the only scores in the third period as Eric Boguniecki got the game winner at 7:25 and Mike Sullivan added an empty net goal at 19:25 for a 4-2 final score.

CHIEFS CHATTER: Senior right wing Normand Bazin continued his red-hot scoring netting a goal in each game against UNH. He now has 11 goals in his last 12 games...Twenty-year old senior center Ian Hebert needs four points to reach 100 for his career...Freshman sensation Greg Bullock had his 11-game scoring streak snapped at UNH on Friday. When he failed to garner a point in Saturday's game, it was the first time all season that he failed to score a point in consecutive games...Junior forward Eric Brown became the eighth UML player this season to tally a shorthanded goal when he lit the lamp at UNH. The goal snapped an eight-game pointless drought for Brown...Junior defenseman Paul Botto scored the first goal of his UML career at UNH...The Chiefs failed to gain any points in the HOCKEY EAST standings for the first time all season when they were swept by UNH. It was the first time UML failed to earn a point in a weekend series since Feb. 5-6, 1993 when Maine swept the Chiefs...The Chiefs finished their regular season home schedule with a 10-2-3 record...The Chiefs have scored the game's first goal just 13 times in 33 contests. In those 13 games, the Chiefs are 10-1-2 compared to an 8-7-5 records in the other 20 games...The Chiefs had their third largest Division One crowd for the UNH game on Saturday as 2,586 fans came through the doors. This season, the Chiefs have drawn their second and third largest crowds since moving to Division One in 1983...For the 12 regular season home HOCKEY EAST games the Chiefs drew 23,393 fans, an average of 1,949 fans per game. Overall, the Chiefs averaged 1,817 for their 15 home games, an increase of 270 fans per game over last season.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Contact: Christine McKenna (508) 934-3224

The University of Massachusetts Lowell is looking for a new nickname and mascot to use both as an athletic symbol and as part of a logo to be used by the entire University. The campus is reaching out to its students, faculty, staff and alumni, as well as members of the general community for suggestions. During a promotional campaign, which will run through March 25, 1994, the University is inviting anyone with a good idea or two to submit them to the school.

The entries will be reviewed by a committee comprised of students, student-athletes, faculty, staff and members of the general community. The committee is looking for a nickname and mascot that will work well both as an athletic symbol and an appropriate logo for the University's academic, research and outreach efforts. Suggestions may be submitted simply as names or with drawings that suggest how the nickname could be used visually on items such as uniforms, T-shirts and stationary.

There is no limit to the number of suggestions a person can make and no restrictions about who may submit ideas. Be creative, be original and focus on ideas that would be particularly fitting for UMass Lowell.

Send your ideas to:

Christine McKenna

Last month, UMass Lowell Chancellor William T. Hogan accepted the recommendation of an advisory committee to retire the school's current symbol, the Chief. In use since 1975, the Chief, while always used in a respectful manner by the school, was determined to be inappropriate.

At Boston University's Commonwealth Armory, the men were led by sophomore Kevin Labrecque's 6th place finish (49.78 seconds) in the 400 meters and the 4X800 meter relay, comprised of Anthony Balakier, Ellis Hall, Gary Neal and Adrien Grise, who also registered a 6th place time of 7:53.3. The same foursome placed 8th in the Distance Medley Relay with a season's best time of 10:20.45. Dom Armano qualified for the semi-finals in the 55 meter high hurdles and Ryan McNeal competed in both the hurdles and the Triple Jump.

At the University of Rhode Island, competing (as did the men) against the top Division I track powers, the women's team finished 6th with some outstanding individual performances. It was the best performance ever for the UMass Lowell women. Leading the way was New England Champion Diana Diaz with an NCAA National qualifying time of 57.75 seconds in the 400 meters. Diana is only the second individual champion in the history of Lowell track. Also turning in great performances was Deena Giordano, 3rd in the Long Jump, Theresa Henchey, 4th in the 500 meters, Katie Hitchcock, 4th in the 800 meters with an NCAA qualifying time, the 4X200 meter relay team (Heidi Pelletier, Sarah Dundon, Giordano, Diaz) and the 4X400 meter relay team (Diaz, Hitchcock, Giordano, Henchey). Shauna Crafton placed 8th in the 5,000 meters (NCAA qualifier) as did Tammi Brooks in the 1 mile. Lauren Andriolo was 9th in the Triple Jump and qualified for the semi-finals in the 55 meter hurdles as did Pelletier in the 55 meter dash. Also competing were Karen Riessland in both the 20 lb. Weight Throw and the Shot Put, Jenn Pratt in the High Jump and the 4X twins (800) relay of Kim and Heather Farrand and Lynn and Laurie Tucker.

It was also announced today that Shauna Crafton was selected as a member of the All East Cross Country Team by Eastern Track Magazine which covers the sport from Maine to Virginia.
